

Selection and propagation of native Utah plants for use in water conserving landscapes

Larry Rupp

06/01/2018

Selection and propagation of native Utah plants for use in water conserving landscapes

There is a need for improved landscape water conservation. This need can be partially met by finding and developing water conserving native plants for use as alternative landscaping materials. The benefit of this work will be increased availability and use of native plants in landscaping which should be more sustainable than other plant materials and use less water.